

Randick, Nicole

561

Evaluation Methodologies in Clinical Interventions Across the Lifespan

Adler Graduate School

09-21-2015 – 10-05-2015

Comments: Use the space provided in the text area below for your comments.

- This is one of those courses where the content and experience were so highly applicable and the learning process so energizing, it would be worth taking it for the experience regardless of whether it is required for licensure or not. I especially appreciated the professor's ability to synthesize concepts not only with real world counseling situations but especially with Adlerian values. I understand fully that due dates need to work with the professor's schedule, but I am recommending that one of the weekly assignments be due on a Saturday/Sunday so that for those of us working full time, we have a day off from work to work on one of the assignments, instead of having to do it late at night after work. Just a thought. I do appreciate that professors are people too and may need weekends for grading, etc.

- Perhaps the most beneficial class while at Adler. I wish I had taken it prior to enrolling in Practicum; it feels like it would have provided a more solid foundation for?and a more natural progression toward?counseling competencies and skills. I sense Dr. Randick is one of those instructors who will continue to influence my practice and personal growth well into the future.